The Peacemaker's Society can be careful with words. They can be sure that they mean the things they say and live up to intentions and promises made. Being dependable, reliable, and consistent builds trust and confidence. Just like a relationship, people like to know what they can expect and be able to rely on stability. Non-verbal communication, listening, and positive non-verbal cues let people know that you value them and care.

Corporations posing as Governments if judged by their actions, do not love the people, they are here to beat, control, violate, murder, and quite literally use contracts to steal your children and all right to property. Compare our actions, and stop listening to their words, because if they couldn't speak, would their actions be anything like what know them to be.
